CONSERVATION OFFICERS PRACTICE THEIR LIFESAVING SKILLS

Warsaw, IN – District One Conservation Officers practiced their lifesaving skills at the Kosciusko Community YMCA on May 28th. At this training the officers were able to learn shallow water entries, treading, water victim rescue techniques and swim strokes that can be utilized in different scenarios. This training was led by Jon Cook, one of only two officers in the district to instruct Defensive Tactics. This curriculum on water survival and safety was recently designed by the DNR Training section of the Law Enforcement Division. District One Conservation Officers are required to train 4 times a year in Defensive Tactics and Firearms. District One includes Kosciusko, Fulton, Marshall, St. Joseph, Miami, Wabash, and Elkhart counties.
